The extension of the New York insurance inquiry from the three big life ecinpanies to other concerns does not bring out any improvement in the character of management. There are shown, in the case of the president of the Metropolitan life company, the same moral obliquity and use of a Wast position for personal profit, which were revealed severally in the cases of the three large concerns. Mr. Hegeman could see no impropriety in profiting personally from the investment operations of his company; still, he concluded finally to nay over to the company. cluded finally to pay over to the company some of his profits. He admits without a blush that in reply to questions on this matter from state insurance commissioners he badly misrepresented the facts—to use a mild term. He can see no impropriety in using the funds of the company to favor individual friends and bankers, and accepting in return banking favors of great value, which are taken for himself. great value, which are taken for himself great value, which are taken for himself instead of the company. And the funds so used are in this case derived from the nickel and dime contributions from the very poor. It is as bad a case of moral obtuseness or conscious perversion of trusteeship as has hitherto been revealed in the insurance probing.

Tuberculosis Sanitorium at Pittsford or Ludlow.

The state tuberculosis sanitorium, made possible through the gift of Senator Redfield Proctor, will be located either at Pittsford or Ludlow. The place in Pittsford is a flat, sandy tract of land, well wooded and the citizens of that town have petitioned for the sanitorium. The prospective site in Ludlow is the Fred Thompson farm, on which an option has been secured until next January. This is situated about a mile from the village on an elevation well sheltered from the winds. Its situation is ideal for the purpose and it is thought that the problem of a water supply could be met with a reserveir fed by the two brooks that meet on the reconstantials above the form on the mountainside above the farm.

The commission visited points on the mountains at Pittsford, Mendon and Ludmountains at Pittision, Mendon and Lido-low Friday and then returned to Rutland. Senator Proctor, who was in Rutland and Proctor on official business, met the com-mission informally en route to Rutland from Proctor and the matter was dis-cussed. Senator Proctor leaves the matter of the selection of the site entirely with the computation. It is difficult, indeed, to see what good object can be gained by the ill-advised criticism of John H. Merrifield by certain sections of the Vermont press, evidently those with a prior candidate for lieutenant-governor. Mr. Merrifield's modest statement of his position and the entire absence of the enforced or perfunctory about the hearty support given his candidacy commend him quite freely to the thinking men of the salection of the selection of the selection

No Decision in Mary Rogers Case.

No decision was handed down by the supreme court at Washington Monday in the case of Mrs. Mary Mabel Rogers, who was sentenced to death for poisoning her husband at Bennington in 1962. In view husband at Bennington in 1962. In view of the fact that the date fixed for her execution by the last reprieve granted by the governor of Vermont, Dec. 8, is less than a month hence, and that the court will not be in session again until Nov. 27, it was expected that the decision would be rendered Monday. While it is impossible to tell in what light the members of the court view the unique points that were raised in the case by Mrs. Rogers's counsel it was thought by Washington lawyers raised in the case by Mrs. Rogers's counsel, it was thought by Washington lawyers who are familiar with the practice of the court that there would be little difficulty in disposing of the case, and that the decision would be handed down Monday.
As this action was not taken, it would seem to indicate that the justices either were unable to agree upon a decision at once, or that the questions to be decided are such that considerable research and elaborate opinions are necessary. From the fact that the court did not decide the case offhand, it is thought the chances that the court may intervene in the case are somewhat brighter. The court will spend the next two weeks in considering the causes that have already been argued. and the Rogers appeal will undoubtedly be among those which will be decided when it reconvenes Nov. 27. That would still leave 11 days before the date fixed for the execution. Another recess will be taken from Nov. 29 until Dec. 4.

MASS OF SORES

Awful Suffering of Little Boy from an Itching Humour

CURED BY CUTICURA

Not One Square Inch of Skin on His Whole Body Unaffected

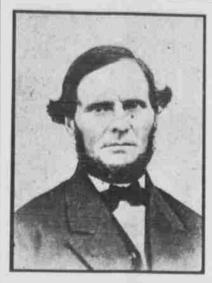

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but its treatment did no good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put the Cuticura Oint-ment on him on bandages, as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heart-break-ing. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth appli-cations the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. Now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day."

SIXTY-TWO YEARS OF HAPPY MARRIED LIFE

Home of Mr. and Mrs. Abner B. Bailey in West Dummerston a Scene of Domestic Felicity

Sixty-two years of companionship as husband's interests have been her in-husband and wife has served but to in-tensify the devotion of Mr. and Mrs. Abner led was not without her wise counsel and B. Balley for each other, and their attractive home in West Dummerston village today is a picture of domestic felicity. In their advancing years, he being $4 and she 80, they live alone in happiness and contentment, and, it may be added, in plenty, the industry of their earlier days having yielded them a competence. Mr. Bailey is handicapped by partial less of sight and Mrs. Bailey is not in the best of health, but they care for each other with a tender affection which is the erowning glory of their old age.

The 62d anniversary of their marriage fell on Oct. 24. The day was allowed to pass without an observance, but the sentiments of love and honor and respect for them on the part of their towns-people and throughout the wider com-munity of the county, though they lacked actual manifestation, were as positive as at any time during the years that have been connected intimately with the busi-ness interests of the county and state. He was born in Dummerston Jan. 14, 1821, on the stone quarry farm, so called, which was owned and occupied a long time by his brother, the late Silas Balley. He was a son of David Balley Balley. He was a son of David Balley who was a man of much influence during his lifetime. Abner Balley attended the district schools in Dimmerston and then took up the occupation of farming, in which he grew to manbood. Afterwards he learned the carpenter's trade and became a builder, erecting a number of houses in Putney and West Brattleboro. Mrs. Balley's maiden name was Caroling A. Huntley. She was born April 1, 1825, and was a daughter of Lyman and Lydia (Pennett) Huntley of West Dummerston. That part of the town in which she was born was known as "The Hague." and she lived there until her marriage. She is an estimable woman and is endowed with a delightful personality. Suit for $300,000 Damages.

A suit for damages involving more than $300,000 and one liable to prove very expensive to both litigants, is in progress at Blocanfield. It is an action brought by the Van Dyke company against the Grand Trunk railroad to recover for damages caused by the destructive forest fires of 1902. Hundreds of acres were burned over and much valuable timber was destroyed. The lumber company claims that sparks from a locomotive caused the fire, while the defence of the railroad is that a smaller forest fire, which is admitted to have been burning just previously, caused be more serious conflagration. The case being heard by Referee F. S. Platt of oultney, a former inspector of finance; H. F. Graham of Craftsbury, state audi or, and W. H. The post office in Proctor was robbed of $150 Thursday night. The thieves pried open a window and blew open the safe. The office was in the Vermont Marble company's store building, but nothing in the store was touched. Early Friday morning the safe in W. H. Thomas & Co.'s store in Middlebury was blown open, but no money was obtained.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Bailey went to live on a farm in the west-ern part of Newfane and remained there until 1852, when they returned to West Dummerston. They moved to Putney in 1859 and lived there three years. From then until 1867 they lived in West Brat-tleboro, and since 1867 they have lived in their present home, which was built by Mr. Balley. No children were born to them.

For many years Mr. Bailey was a mem-ber of the board of trustees of the Windber of the board of trustees of the Wind-ham County Savings bank in Newfane, and he was a member of the building committee who built the new savings bank He was a member of the board of directors of the Brattleboro & Whitehall Railroad company during the construc-tion of the railroad and as long as Dum-mersion was allowed representation on the board. He served his native town seven years as selectman and held seven years us selectman and held numerous other town offices and posi-tions of trust. He was a delegate from Dummerston to the constitutional conven-tion of Vermont in 1870.

In the days of his business activity Mr. Bailey was a man of unusually good judgment and was far above the average man in ability. His opinions and as-sistance were sought by his townsmen in matters of moment and he was called matters of moment and he was called upon to help settle numerous estates, in various capacities. Prominent himself, he was associated with men of prominence, who found him to be a man of pronounced integrity and of upright principles. His dry humor has manifested itself in sharp witticisms and his generosity in his open purse. His mental vigor continues unabated, and he is today, as always, a delightful companion, held in always, a delightful companion, held in affection and esteem by all who know him. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey have been members of the Congregational church in Dum-merston Centre a long time.

The methods are like those of the burglars who have robbed other Vermont post offices within a mouth. Postoffice Inspector P. J. Rapp visited Proctor Friday but obtained no clews.

A running fight took place between two men answering to the description of those wanted for the robbery at Proctor and a number of farmers between Mill village and Vershire. Randolph has a seven-day sensation in the disclosures concerning the Iodine club of the high school. More Than $1,000,000 Misapplied.

A sensation was caused in the super-ior criminal court at Boston Saturday when Asst. Dist-Atty. Chase accused Ferdinand E. Borges of having misapplied more than $1,000,000 in connection with the operations of the Ubero Plantation company, of which he was a promoter, and the entangled affairs of which have figured constitutions in the company, of which he was a promoter, and the entangled affairs of which have figured conspicuously in the commercial world the past year. Borges was summoned into court to answer an indictment returned against him by the Suffolk grand jury, accusing him of larceny in 126 counts and two counts of conspiracy, as a result of his questionable plantation dealing. He pleaded "not guilty." "So large an amount of money is involved." remarked Judge Stevens, "that I do not think that even $50,000 will be enough, so I will fix the bail at $75,000." In default of the surety he was remanded to jall. The first conspiracy count charges Borges and another man who has not been apprehended with frauduently stealing, on Aug. 10, "the property, money, goods and chattles of divers persons whose names are unknown to the jury," and the second conspiracy count charges a similar offence May 1. The larceny counts involve an aggregate of $25.425, alleged to have been taken from Warren B. Page, upon whose complaint Borges was arrested. Edwin O. Childs, Charles W. Wilbert and John M. Landers.
